Civic Clean-Up This Coming Week

The Council draws attention of citizens to the clean up to be put on next week. This will likely be the last time this fall that any of the town except the business section will be cleaned up and all are asked to co-operate in this drive. If rubbish and refuse is piled where it will be convenient for men and trucks to get at it, it will be removed.

CORN POPPS IN GARDEN

While gathering pop corn in the garden last week, Mrs. Fred Piepgrass was very much surprised to find one cob with the kernels nearly all popped on it.

Mrs. Piepgrass stated that the kernels popped in the garden were not opened quite as wide as they open when popped on the stove. But they were popped exactly in the same fashion. Just what causes this no one knows unless it is possibly the warm sunshine that has prevailed this month so late in the season.

The Stake Presidency and I. B. Roberts, Stake Clerk, were in Tyrell's Lake on Sunday where they held Ward Conference, two meetings were held and a very good attendance reported at both of them.

"All About Cats" an article Children will like.

"Is Hitler Sane"? A psychologist doubts it. In Look, October 25th.

This week we say thanks to the Book Lovers Score for "Our Town" by Wilder. To Mrs. Peterson for three splendid books of Bible stories. To Mrs. M. W. Boyson for the American Magazine. To Fred Turner, for "Wild Deuces" by Larkin. The Stake Y.W.M.I.A. for "Utah Songs" by Merrill and Brandley and "The Teachings of the Prophet Joseph" by Joseph Fielding Smith. I.G.A. and L. Study Club for "The Horse and Buggy Doctor" by Hertzler, head of the Hertzler Clinic at Halstead, Kansas. Dr. Hertzler began his work as a country doctor with primitive equipment to work with. His daughter desired to know something of his early life and asked him to write it for her and her children. This splendid book is the story he wrote for his family. It tells of the life of a struggling country doctor and the part he plays in the country where roads are long and hospital facilities few and far between.

Most asked for books of the past two weeks: "Listen, the Wind" by Anne Morrow Lindbergh and "North to the Orient".

The most asked for books of the same period the works of John Buchan and Kathleen Norris.

NEWS NOTES

Jas. E. Meeks was a Calgary visitor last week.

Parley Meldrum is driving a new Oldsmobile sedan purchased recently.

President Z. W. Jacobs of the Alberta Stake will speak in the Raymond 2nd Ward next Sunday evening.

Lee has recessed a couple of advertising boxes on the front of the Capitol Theatre, and is glassing them in to give better display of his picture advertising.

Speakers at the First Ward sacrament meeting Sunday night last were Elders W. E. Brown, B. Lacquement, Cal Merkley and D. Bennett. Miss Grace Bingham also rendered a piano solo. The program was an exchange program from Magrath 1st Ward and after the opening exercises Elder Lacquement took charge.

Music lovers of Raymond enjoyed a real treat on Thursday evening at the Capitol Theatre when Miss Aiko Sita, Japanese contralto, rendered a program of fifteen numbers, including classical and popular numbers and ballads. Miss Sita has a well trained voice and gave her listeners a real treat.

Radio Inspectors were in town Thursday checking up on radio matters and unlicensed sets. There was quite a rush for licenses, people forgetting the annual license until a visit like this reminded them vividly of it. Licenses now are $2.50 too.

Let's have an enjoyable but a sensible Halloween in Raymond. Young folks deserve a good time, but this doesn't mean destroying property nor putting people to a great deal of inconvenience. Every Boy Scout should act in his capacity as one who upholds the law on that night, and see that no damage is done in Halloween pranks.

When an Australian Air liner crashed into a mountain side 40 miles southeast of Melbourne, 18 persons were killed including C. Hawker, member of parliament and former minister of commerce. The ship flew off the directional beam in a mist and a storekeeper in the town of Kiorana said he heard the plane roaring through the mist a few minutes before the crash.

Biggest Beet Yet to be Made

Good weather, without interruption from storm, and a week longer, for digging than has been the practice in the past, will make one of the biggest beet pay days on November 1st that beet growers of the Raymond and Picture Butte Taber and Barnwell and other areas have ever known. Officials announce that the amount will be well over one million dollars.

It is seldom that we have such a long spell of lovely weather, for beet harvest as has been experienced this year. Not only has the weather been warm and summerlike with plenty of sunshine, but it has been fine and dry for a good long time too, and many growers are through digging entirely now, and others have only their operations. The cut off date for the November 1st pay has usually been October 15th, but this year the date was put back one week to October 22nd and his fact will make a tremendous difference in the payment to the individual growers, as this is one of the heaviest weeks of beet deliveries of the entire fall.

Along with this payment on beet deliveries, based on $5.25 per ton initial pay, will be a final bonus on last year's beet crop, which will be made sometime this week it is expected. Payments on last year's beets to date total $6.30 and even if the final payment is only 20c a ton it will have made $6.50 per ton for last year's beets.

No figures of average tonnage have been released as yet but in conversation with several growers, their average in this district has been 13 tons and over, it appears that at least a 12 ton average for the entire crop may be looked for. Taber and Barnwell, because of the superior texture of their soil for beet culture usually shade the other districts a little in average tonnage. Raymond is about the same as Picture Butte and Coaldale always has good beet harvests. Shorter seasons in some areas make slightly lower average yields, however which will likely make a total average of between 12 and 13 tons.

Both factories are having an excellent run. Some trouble was experienced in the early part of the season with the beets in the piles starting to heat, but these beets were taken out and sliced immediately, and while there was some loss, it was quite small, and now with the cooler weather the beets are keeping in very good condition.

Around 100 days will likely be required to slice the crop which will mean that the factories will be closing down around Christmas time or the first of the year.

NEWS NOTES

Cliff Dahl's home is being finished up inside now. The outside is covered with the pressed brick siding, the basement is full size and will contain a playroom for the children, besides the furnace, wash room etc.

Calgary taxi drivers report that transients have quit walking from town to the diamond where the freight trains slow up. They hire a taxi, ride to the diamond and then hop their freights as they slow up.

Work is progressing on the new home of Mrs. Sarah Fraser, being constructed just north of the Ray Depew home on Broadway. This will make about five homes under construction in Raymond now.

Elsie M. Stevenson enjoyed a visit recently from her brother J. C. L. Lund, his son Gordon, and two nieces Mrs. J. B. Standing and Mrs. H. E. Bird, all of Salt Lake City Utah. They returned to their homes last week. They were agreeably surprised to witness such beautiful weather in Sunny Southern Alberta.

TRADE BUILDS CITIES

That community profits most that keeps the largest percentage of its trade at home. By the same token, the citizen who buys away from home is helping some other community, instead of his own, to grow.

Business is the lifeblood of the community. A city or town can grow no faster than its business grows. And the retail trade is a vital part of this business.

Many patrons of mail order houses and out-of-town stores do not realize the extent they injure their own community and themselves by diverting their trade from home town merchants. They do not realize that they lose far more than the few cents they may think they save in the immediate transactions.

Industries bring money to a community, but the community benefits only when that money is spent at home. It gets no benefit from the money if it passes directly from the pay envelope to the mail order house, the degree it does benefit being in direct ratio to the length of time it remains in local circulation.

The well-meaning housewife reasons with herself that Raymond merchants will not miss the few cents accompanying the mail order or the small purchase in the nearby city. She is at fault only in that she does not reason far enough. Those few cents would remain at home and that small purchase would be made in a local store if she multiplied them by the number of housewives in the community.

Anything that can be purchased away from Raymond can be obtained here, and with equal economy.

Local merchants report a brisk business in oil burning heaters. Evidently the coal stove may be replaced by one which makes no dust nor ashes.

GENEALOGICAL PROGRAM SUNDAY NIGHT

The program for Sunday evening, October 30th in the Raymond 2nd Ward will be under the direction of the Magrath 2nd Ward and the Raymond 2nd Ward program will be presented in Magrath 2nd Ward.

Principal speaker of the evening will be Elder Z. W. Jacobs of Cardston, counselor to President Edw. J. Wood in the Alberta Stake and also in the Alberta Temple. An interesting program is assured.

NEWS NOTES

Reg. Cooper has been sick this week with a very bad case of flu which came very nearly turning into pneumonia.

Lou Fisher has the foundation for his new home, being erected on the south-west corner of his mother's lot. The frame work is going up now.

Presidents Wood and Allen, F. R. Taylor, B. J. Coombs and partners and others from Raymond were in Magrath Monday evening to a social there.

The first coats of stucco were put on Les Palmer's home the end of last week. The fine weather has permitted this sort of work to go on much later in the season than is usually safe and practical for this section of the country.

A number of Raymond people including Mr. and Mrs. Lou Fisher were in Magrath on Sunday to the funeral services of Mr. James L. Parkinson, father of Mrs. Fisher. We extend our sympathies to Mrs. Fisher in her sorrow. Mr. Parkinson was a real gentleman and a true Christian.

Excavation started Saturday on the new home of Lloyd McPhee, being erected in between the W. T. Barratt and Cassey Ralph homes. "Mac" liked the old neighborhood so well he just couldn't bring himself to move away from it. The lot was formerly owned by Karl Schneider.

RAYMONDITES AT B.Y.U.

Provo, Utah—Six Raymond students are among the 47 from southern Alberta registered this quarter at Brigham Young university in the largest student body in the history of the institution. The Canadian students help swell the registration this term to over 2250, which exceeds last year's record for the same time by more than 300 students.

The students from Raymond are Edna Anderson, Earl Bascom, Alice Card, Donna V. Galbraith, Verl Rolfson and Durrell Romeril.

The Alberta students share in making the university one of the most cosmopolitan in the nation, having representative students from three-fourths of the states of the U.S., and six foreign nations.

A number of the vocalists from Alberta, with special talent, take part in the Men and Womens Glee Club, which is the largest that the university has ever assembled, having 156 voices. These students will be privileged to travel throughout Utah and the adjoining states in concert appearances.

There is a Canadian Club at B.Y.U. and the Raymond students take an active part in it.

University of Wisconsin D. W. Woolley

Star student in the chemistry department of the University of Alberta and now at the University of Wisconsin, D. W. Woolley, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Woolley of Raymond, has been made a doctor of science by the University of Wisconsin. This brilliant young Southern Albertan was only 23 when this distinction came to him.

Since graduating from the U of A. in 1935 with first class honors in chemistry, young Woolley has been studying at Wisconsin on scholarships; his unusual scholastic ability has won for him. This summer he journeyed to Europe on a fellowship which carried him to Geneva for special duty.

University of Alberta professors can recall only one previous instance of a Canadian student of similar youthfulness winning a doctorate. Dr. W. H. Peterson, under whose direction the young chemist is working at the University of Wisconsin, has described him as a "genius."

In the past year Dr. Woolley has won international renown among scientists for "brilliant investigation of the isolation B as an anti-pellagic factor, and identification" of Vitamin Common in the southern United States, pellagra is a disease caused by improper diet.

Rotary Meeting

At Monday night's Rotary meeting Frank R. Taylor gave a talk on Vocational Service, showing the members the scope of this lane in Rotary service. It opens a big field and would make a wonderful difference in every community if lived up to 100 per cent. by the members of the Club.

Doctor Madill talked on recent developments in glass making, and what might be expected in the way of three dimension movies, non-glare automobile lights, truecolor viewing, etc. It opened the eyes of most Rotarians to the developments in this field. Oh yes, we forgot to mention that it hoped to evolve a foreshadow that would permit a doctor gazing into one's stomach and see the organs of the body in actual operation. No doubt it was this feature that was particularly interesting to the Doctor.

Next Week's meeting will be a luncheon meeting at 12:15 in the United Church. President Lee would like to have every Rotarian present. Come on fellows, let's make a few 100 p.e. meetings between now and Xmas. Larger clubs than we are have a habit of doing it. Are they better Clubs than us? By our presence at meetings we can definitely say No.

NOT A FESTIVAL FOR HOODLUMS

The vigil of All Saints' Day, or, Hallowe'en, is primarily of religious significance, but its observance in recent years has reflected principally the pagan influences of the early ages, when masking and mumming, bonfires, fortune-telling and talk of witches were the order of the day. There is nothing essentially harmful or objectionable in any of the traditional practices of Hallowe'en, and, in fact, they are attended often by a wealth of harmless and wholesome enjoyment.

Hallowe'en becomes dangerous as to decency and to good taste only when its observance is taken over by rowdies who take advantage of the spirit of freedom and revelry that is in the air to engage in the wanton destruction of property, to offend and insult passersby and to make themselves offensive in a great variety of ways. While making liberal allowance for the festive atmosphere that customarily prevails, the police are nevertheless under an obligation on reasons of public safety, to disburse celebrants who may entertain the idea that a proper celebration calls for violence and destruction of private property.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen King, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Rayo Wolf were Lethbridge visitors Tuesday.

Draw a circle 80 miles in diameter around the City of Lethbridge and you will pretty well include the best growing areas of Southern Alberta, in which are situated two sugar factories and about 12,000 acres of land seeded to beets each year. What does this mean to the financial life of business in this area? It would be very interesting to know exactly what it did mean.

A little figuring would be interesting though. On November 1st one million dollars will be mailed to growers as the initial payment on 1938 beets delivered. This is based on $5.25 per ton for beets delivered up to the cut off date. Now add to this $2,000 a day in wages paid out in the Raymond Sugar and Picture Butte factories. This sum is merely an estimate but when you multiply it by 100 days, then you can see how much this will total in the campaign time each fall. Added to this is the payments for coal, coke, lime, etc., etc. and the sum amounts to quite a few million dollars each year. Then amongst the direct benefits should be mentioned the by-products of molasses, pulp, etc., increased yields of other crops from the hoeing of the beets, and directly and indirectly the benefits are legion.

We hear the argument occasionally that the farmer does not get his share of the total value of the crop raised, and we are not in a position to say one way or the other respecting this. We do feel however, that everyone will agree that the industry in all its phases is of great benefit to everyone, farmer and business men alike. A knowledge of just what it means in dollars each year to Southern Alberta would help us all to a greater appreciation of the real value of the industry.

DIGEST THIS

John Milton, who felt he could speak with some authority about the world's first citizen, takes occasion to mention in the course of "Paradise Lost" that Adam ordinarily was a light sleeper, this being due to the excellence of his digestion. To be sure, Adam did not have a great deal to worry about—at first, disturbances should have promoted—as no doubt it did—a hearty appetite as well as restful if not profound, slumber. But this very lack helps to explain why Adam does not figure as a genius. How could he, if the researches of Dr. T. Wingate Tedd, anatomist at the Western Reserve University's School of medicine mean anything?

For Dr. Todd, after apparently long and arduous investigation, leans distinctly to the hypothesis that faculties of the mind may be stimulated—in some instances, at least—by unhappiness in the digestive tract.

"Would Darwin," he asks, "have framed the theory of evolution had it not been for the imagery created by his chronic indigestion?" This is what is called a rhetorical question; and one afflicted (or blessed) by dyspepsia and, therefore, on the way to Johnson? He does not. To him Samuel Johnson is an example to be remembered with reverence. He admits that Samuel's indigestion made him cantankerous, but points out that along with that cantankerousness—of the Johnson variety—"there goes a brilliance of imagery and creative thought."

One or two observations suggest themselves, the first and most obvious being that the structure of the Johnsonian and Darwinian brain cells might have had something to do with their outgivings.

A CAR IS LIKE A CAT

It is quiet, except for a slow and pleasing purr. Its padded tires are like padded feet. It has powerful eyes that shine at night. And when it is allowed to run wild, it gives an awful screech at the moment before it does its victim to death.

At 25 miles an hour, it is like a pussy-cat. It may scratch you up in an accident, but it isn't likely to kill you. Few fatal accidents occur at low speeds.

At 50 miles an hour, it is not twice but four times as powerful. Like a bobcat, it is quite able to inflict great damage.

At 75 miles an hour, it is not three but NINE times as powerful as at 25. Nine times as hard to stop—nine times as hard to turn—nine times as deadly.—Oshawa Times.

SECRET WILL OUT

Women who expect to live to be 100 years old are not helping to make their dream come true if they wear high heels, eat pie, stay up later than 10 o'clock at night, and drink less than ten glasses of water a day. This is the admonition of Dr. Sara Janson, Chicago physician. Her remarks were addressed to a women audience, so we have no way of knowing whether, in her opinion, men are committing slow suicide by similar habits.

Dr. Janson also includes among her rules for longevity plenty of home life, plenty of hard work, appreciation of art and music, care of health and the preservation of the purity of intellectual and spiritual standards. Some of these are old familiars, but it may be that the doctor has found in low heels, a pieless diet and the artistic life the secret sought by Pince de Leon. Maybe, and then again maybe not.

EXPERIMENTAL STATION LETHBRIDGE

WEEKLY LETTER

SUGGESTIONS TO LAMB FEEDERS

Each fall the lamb feeding industry assumes a role of major importance in Southern Alberta and indications are that this year will be no exception. Although many farmers have been feeding lambs each year for a number of years, there will undoubtedly be some who are engaging in the business for the first time. The suggestions offered in this letter are directed particularly to those who have had relatively little experience in lamb feeding.

The first problem confronting the prospective feeder is, how many lambs must be obtained in order to use the feed that he has available. Probably the easiest way to answer this question is to quote results obtained from a large number of feeding experiments conducted at the Lethbridge Experimental Station. It was found that an average of 7.5 pounds of roughage and 3.7 pounds of grain were required for each pound of gain per lamb, or in other words, for 30 pounds gain per lamb, 225 pounds of hay and 115 pounds of grain would be required for each lamb placed in the feedlot. As the lambs used in these experiments were rather heavy to start with the duration of the feeding period was relatively short. It would be advisable to increase the above figures by 25 per cent in order to be on the safe side. Light lambs must be fed for a much longer period than short keep lambs and consequently require more feed.

It is advisable to start the lambs out on 2 to 3 ounces of oats per head, but the oats should be rapidly replaced by barley or other heavier grain although excellent results have been obtained by continuing about one-quarter of the grain ration as oats.

While wheat and barley gave approximately equal results at this Station, it was found that barley was somewhat easier to feed than wheat. Care should be taken not to increase the grain allowance too rapidly as it is very difficult to get lambs back on their feed once they refuse to eat. A good plan is to divide the lamb band on a basis of size so that large and small lambs can be fed separately. When lambs are receiving a full amount of grain they will eat close to two pounds per head daily. A plentiful supply of clean water, should be available at all times to lambs on dry feed and the importance of this cannot be overemphasized.

A condition frequently found in the feedlot is "soremouth." Many feeders have been under the impression that this disease is due to the particular feeds used, but actually the cause of the disease is a virus or germ. Practical preventative measures have not as yet been developed but the use of a germicide will speed up recovery. A 5 p.c. tincture of iodine applied with a stiff brush is probably the most satisfactory germicide. Although the disease seldom proves fatal it causes heavy losses in the form of unthrifty lambs and prolonged feeding time.

Additional information on lamb feeding is available on request.

Our Edmonton Letter
(By T. B. Windross)

Edmonton, Oct. 24—Signs interpreted by some as meaning that a federal election is not far away in Canada were seen in Edmonton during the past week, with visits by some national political leaders.

Hon. R. J. Manion was the first; he delivered two addresses in the provincial capital on his way to the coast; in his first western tour since he became national Conservative leader last July. Returning east, he stopped at Calgary. Following him came Hon. W. D. Herridge, brother-in-law and counselor of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett and a sponsor for radical monetary "reform." He delivered no speeches on the prairies, however, and his mission remained something of a mystery.

On the same day, Hon. H. H. Stevens was in Edmonton. Their arrival at the same time, however, was declared a pure coincidence, and he his fellow "rebel" in the Conservative party. Mr. Stevens said he was here on private business only.

Then Hon. J. G. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture, appeared in Red Deer constituency and addressed a convention at Olds. Hon. Norman Rogers, federal minister of labor, came to the province at the first of this week, to address a Liberal convention in Edmonton. At the same time, there were reports that other ministers from Ottawa might visit Alberta soon.

It was suspected that Mr. Herridge may have come to Edmonton to confer with Premier William Aberhart and other Social Crediters. He was accompanied on his western trip by Charles A. Bowman, an ardent disciple of Major C. H. Douglas and of Social Credit. Mr. Bowman's position as editor in chief of the Ottawa citizen, one of the Southern chain of newspapers which includes the Edmonton Journal and the Calgary Herald, evidently emboldened Social Crediters somewhat, because the fact that a Social Credit newspaper is a member of the Southern chain makes a joke of the Social Crediters' claim that Alberta newspapers are "controlled by the financial interests" and "tentacles of the octopus."

Among the hints of an approaching election, some observers say, are the fact that Liberals are very busy now choosing candidates for the next federal election and the report that men are being selected for the enumeration of voters which must precede that election.

There are other equally strong indications, however, that there will be no national election before October of next year. None is required by law until early in 1931.

If Mr. Herridge did have a conference here with Mr. Aberhart, it was kept secret officially. But Premier Aberhart did meet him briefly, at least, and dispend a long time with Mr. Bowman. So did L. D. Byrne, Social Credit "expert" sent here by Major Douglas.

The national political picture is of interest in Alberta provincial politics now particularly since Social Credit politicians are wondering what can be done in the federal field in order to increase their prestige in the provincial field. Results of their efforts in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba in the past two years have disappointed them greatly. They sought to take some credit for Social Credit in the New Zealand election last week when the Savage government was returned, but the fact that Social Credit was repudiated officially by that government long before the election ruins the Alberta claim.

The treasury branches, also called "credit houses," seem to be continuing operation in the seven points where they have been established. They have met no opposition whatever except the almost complete indifference of the people. Chartered banks have been giving the treasury branches every co-operation possible, honoring their "cheques" when presented by clients in good repute and providing cash in exchange for them. Such co-operation is reported to have been a sore blow to the plans which the government and Social Credit board reputed to have drawn up for propaganda against the banks on the basis of expected opposition.

The indifference with which the people are treating the "credit houses" was shown in Edmonton last week. The Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Merchants' association arranged a big dinner meeting to discuss and explain the scheme. Glen L. MacLachlan, M. L. A., and Floyd Baker, M. L. A., as chairman and secretary of the Social Credit board, were invited to address the meeting. Three hundred merchants were invited. But only 20 of them accepted. So the meeting had to be cancelled.

Liberals are claiming a certain victory in the Athabasca provincial bye-election set for Nov. 7. They have done little campaigning there yet, but the Social Credit forces have been busy in the interests of C. H. Tade, who won the seat in 1935, resigning in the favor of Hon. C. C. Ross, and became the president of the Alberta Social Credit league. Mr. Tade was chosen as candidate by the "selections committee" which Aberhart attended although he had been far from getting the most votes in the nominating convention. Liberals were delighted when the Social Credit strategists chose him.

Mrs. Edith Gostick, M. L. A., for Calgary, was among the first Social Crediters to enter the campaign. She told her audience that newspapers had been told in advance by Hon. J. C. Bowen, lieutenant-governor, that he was going to reserve assent on three bills last October. The truth was that newspapermen in the press gallery of the house did not know what was going on until the information leaked out of the Social Credit emergency caucus which was called when the legislature was adjourned suddenly that afternoon.

TRADING MUSCLE FOR FAT

An insurance company finds that 20 per cent of its policy holders over the age of 40 are overweight. The doctors tell us that when we reach elderly life it is far better to be underweight than overweight. The fat man can look with envy on the beanpole figure. The trouble with the majority of these folks, is that they lost interest in physical activity. It seemed easier to them to sit on a cushioned seat, and let the gas buggy pull them around. When you give up some of your muscle, and allow fat to grow in its place, you are likely to be trading off some years of your life.

GROWING OLD?

Men, like wine, take on a finer flavor, with the years. A ripe experience leads to a deeper understanding. The hot petulance of youth may impel a man to "deeds of daring rectitude," but it takes experience in the rough and tumble of business and professional life to look with "scorn for miserable aims that end in self."—Joseph E. Pooley in the November Rotarian.

Growing up and becoming President is still tops, with us at least. In Europe, growing up is considered good. Did anti-aircraft equipment ever shoot down an enemy plane in war? Not that we're criticizing—we're only wondering.

The next revised edition of "How to Win Friends and Influence People" will carry a footnote explaining Hitler, or should Business opportunity: The quick arrangement of a peace leaves millions of fair Europeans with gas masks and no overnight skin cream with which to line them.

Work on Stirling's new community hall started this week and will be pushed as rapidly as possible to get the building enclosed before cold weather sets in. Finishing will then proceed and it is hoped to have the hall ready for use by the first of December.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

One of the phenomena of the current business revival is the increase in sales of advertised products.

During the time when business indices were slipping downward, the man selling advertised goods sometimes was put up against difficult competition and for fairly obvious reasons.

Chief among these was his investment in a name, which is only another way of saying investment in the faith and confidence of the people.

He could not easily cheapen his product to meet a price, whereas the manufacturer whose name or brands meant nothing was under no such pressure to maintain quality. If price was the controlling thing he could make it.

Another and more complicated factor was the fact that makers of advertised goods found it difficult to play with prices. A good many of the offered articles for which the public had become accustomed to paying a certain price. They were slow to increase the prices on the upward swing beginning in 1933, and they hesitated to create a new price range when the downward movement came.

Still another situation was that involving labor. The maker of advertised products hardly ever operates on the sweatshop principle, whereas fly-by-night manufacturers with no reputation to be harmed, could exploit the labor market to the utmost.

Now the situation has changed because, while the public still is price conscious it is giving more attention to quality and advertised goods offer standard at reasonable cost.

The firm which has a big investment in customer good will cannot afford to jeopardize it by offering shoddy goods. The old maxim that the best way to sell a good product and the best way to kill a poor one is to advertise, still holds good.

MULTIPLYING GOOD SEED

Two years ago the Okotoks Junior Wheat Club started operations with eighteen members and eighty bushels of registered wheat of the variety known as Red Bobs 222, supplied by the Alberta Wheat Pool.

P. Berger, leader of the Okotoks club, has figures to show that in two years members of the club produced fifty-two thousand bushels of pure seed.

This is the type of seed improvement work that some fifteen hundred boys, who are members of the seventy Junior Wheat Clubs operating in Alberta this year, have been doing to better the output of wheat from Alberta farms.

Scientific agriculturists have commented on the fact that wherever a Junior Wheat Club is operating, improvement is soon noted in the seed being sown in the district. Due, in a large measure, to the activity of these Junior Wheat Clubs, the quality of the wheat seed being sown on Alberta farms is steadily improving from year to year.
